This is the Millers' living room. It is not very big, but it is very cozy. When you come in, you see two big sofas, one opposite the other. The sofas are striped blue and white and there are many soft cushions on them. Between the two sofas there is a dark brown, wooden coffee table with a pot of white flowers on it. The Millers love reading books. Therefore, they have two big bookshelves on the back wall. They are white and full of colorful books. Between the bookshelves there is a fireplace and above the fireplace there is a colorful, modern painting. In front of the bookshelf, in the left corner of the room, there is a red reading lamp. On the left wall there are big windows with long curtains. In the front of the room, there is a dining table with two leather chairs. The table is made of glass. There are no carpets, but the wooden floor is very nice.
