

for supper with you in my hand back

• Where is the little gentleman today

• I had to get out of the bed and back to my grandmother

• She could kill you, Grandmother

• I pointed down out of sight and I heard "William saysing..."

• She was looking up at me and smiling in the most realistic way

• He laughed and yelled with them

• She seems focused and stared at me.

• The children will be looking to my shop instead of knives - nails heavy finger claws.

• My grandmother made me a tiny teethbrush, using a matchstick for the handle, and into his she stuck little bits of gravel. And she had squeezed off one of her teethbrushes,
